FAQs

How is Scarlet RF different from regular microneedling? Traditional microneedling only creates micro-injuries. Scarlet RF adds radiofrequency energy, which heats tissue at precise depths to stimulate more collagen, provide better tightening, and deliver more dramatic results. It's significantly more effective for skin laxity and scarring.

Does it hurt? With numbing cream, most clients rate discomfort as 3-5 out of 10. You'll feel heat, vibration, and pressure. Some areas (around mouth, nose) are more sensitive. Most clients tolerate it well and say results are worth any discomfort.

How many treatments do I need? Many see results after one session, but a series of 3 treatments spaced 4-6 weeks apart provides optimal results. Your provider will recommend based on your concerns and goals.

When will I see results? You'll notice tighter skin within 2-4 weeks, but peak results appear at 2-3 months when collagen production maxes out. Results continue improving for up to 6 months.

How long do results last? 12-18+ months or longer. Since the treatment stimulates your own collagen, results are long-lasting. Maintenance treatments 1-2x per year can prolong benefits.

What's the difference between Scarlet RF and Agnes RF? Scarlet focuses on overall skin tightening, texture, and scarring across larger areas. Agnes targets specific fat deposits and precision tightening in smaller areas (under eyes, jowls). Both use RF + microneedling but different techniques.

Can this treat acne scars? YES! Scarlet RF is excellent for acne scarring. It improves rolling scars, boxcar scars, and some ice pick scars significantly. Multiple treatments may be needed for severe scarring.

Is it safe for dark skin? Yes! Scarlet RF is safe for all skin types and tones (Fitzpatrick I-VI). Unlike some lasers, it has minimal risk of hyperpigmentation.

Can I get Botox or filler after this? Wait at least 2 weeks after Scarlet RF before getting injectables. If you already have injectables, wait 2 weeks before doing Scarlet RF.

What if I can't take 5 days off? You don't need to stay home, but you'll have visible redness like a sunburn. If you can work from home or don't mind some redness, you can return to work sooner. Makeup after day 3 helps cover residual pinkness.
